PLAY BY CLOVER CLUB WINS MUCH APPLAUSE

Georgetown University Students Present "The Maid of Marchfeld" at Columbia Theater.

The importance of facial and sartorial make-up in the feminine appeal to the sterner sex was strikingly emphasized by the delightful entertainment, "The Maid of Marchfeld," which the Clover Club, of Georgetown University, presented at the Columbia Theater yesterday afternoon.

Street girls will have to summon to their aid all the arts of the beauty doctor when mere man can be made so femininely pleasing by the use of a little powder and sundry other first aids to attractiveness as the boys of the Blue and Gray evidenced in this, their first production, which was a thoroughly enjoyable affair, and placed them right in the front rank of college theatrical clubs.

The music was selected from a number of popular musical comedies with much discretion and a happy result. It was always melodious and pleasing. But it was the dancing which won the most sincere applause. "Carmina," maitre de ballet, has given skillful direction to the stage evolutions.

Gardner L. Duffy, as Karl, sang love ditties to Arlette with evident effectiveness, for the young woman displayed a tendency to nestle in his manly arms at every opportunity.

Michael L. Donahue, as Helen, proved a charming creature, and a Quir McGurges and Gerald C. Curry, as Arlette's companions, were gracefully girlish. D. Loughran Daly, as Hans, carried off the acting honors.

A number of excellent specialties were introduced in the cabaret scene. William Galvin won deserved applause in a "Monologue"; Joseph Gill combed several well-rendered violin solos; Bernard Rabaut did a black-faded monologue, and Harry Grove out-Mordkined Mordkin. E. I. Devlin, Jr., Joseph Grimes, William Butler, and Cornelius McGrath also entertained.

As handsome a lot of Julian Ellings as can be found in America composed the chorus.

The performance will be repeated at the Columbia Theater this evening.

OF KNOWLEDGE

Scenes and Incidents Pertaining to Greatest Achievement Known to Mankind.

Some one has said, "One's knowledge is of two kinds—that which he already knows, and that which he can readily find out."

There are but few of our readers who realize that the building of the great Panama Canal is actually the greatest work of all time. The Herald is distributing a book to its readers which sets forth every detail of this information. It tells you of the financial aberrations of Count de Lesseps, the Frenchman who first started to dig the great waterway; it explains the problem that has baffled civilization since Galileo crossed the isthmus 40 years ago; it shows how the skill of modern engineering has conquered the seemingly insuperable obstacles. Not only is this information given in detail, but the country and the people are described so accurately that one feels on neighboring terms with them after reading this book.

"Panama and the Canal in Picture and Prose" is profusely illustrated with more than 600 rare photographic reproductions and sixteen magnificent water color studies. These portray every conceivable phase of life in the zone and include numerous scenes never before printed. The pictures alone tell a story of this tropical country that far surpasses any ordinary narrative, and the young as well as the older members of the family will imbibe no end of knowledge on this timely subject.

Certificates such as will be found elsewhere in The Herald today are printed daily during this educational campaign. Clip and present six of these certificates with the small expense amount that covers the bare cost of distribution and this beautiful and useful volume is yours. It not exactly as represented your money will be promptly refunded.
